Marshall Public Library Offers Free Online Study Guides Access practice tests for ACT, SAT, GED, and more

Improving the job search process, preparing for career certification, raising college entrance test scores, and improving 21st century basic skills are all possible with just the click of a mouse through the Marshall Public Library's new free online service, Learning Express.

Learning Express offers access to interactive skill-building courses in math, reading, and writing. You may also access a broad range of practice tests based on official exams such as the ACT, GED, ASVAB, Firefighter, Police Officer, Paramedic, U.S. Citizenship, Postal Worker, Cosmetology, Commercial Drivers License, Dental Assistant, and many more. Master the most popular computer applications and operating systems like Microsoft Office through Learning Express, as well as take tutorials in creating a winning resume and honing interview techniques.

You may access Learning Express from a computer at home or at the Marshall Public Library. To create an account, visit the Library's website at www.marshallpl.org and click on the Learning Express button on the right hand side of the page. It is free to create an account and takes only a few minutes.

For more information, please call the Marshall Public Library at 232-1263 ext. 21.
